The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-4 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by van Putte (6,338,865).

Van Putte discloses adding olive leaves to olive oil in order to enhance the oleic acid content of the olive oil that is extracted during malaxation (see abstract). The fortified oil is used in spreads, mayonnaise, salad dressing and sauces (column 1, lines 1-11). At column 1, lines 27-32, the concept of adding olive leaves to the product in order to improve the flavor is indicated. In this case the olive leaves are considered to be green herbs.

Claims 3, 4 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

These claims utilize an incomplete Markush grouping. An amendment to the claim changing "is selected from" to -is selected from the group consisting of- would overcome the rejection.

Claims 5-11 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
